PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

For nearly 30 years, Brian has been working in the events, venues, and attractions industry. His background is comprised of three areas of expertise: risk and safety management, event design and execution, and education.

Brian's career began on the frontlines of the industry working as a midway operator at Boardwalk and Baseball amusement park at the age of fourteen. Brian has credited his early experience with getting the amusement industry bug... his father Bill would say: "cotton candy is in his blood."

After college, Brian went on to be a manager for five restaurants on property at Universal Studios in Orlando, Florida. He cultivated knowledge in the importance of providing excellent customer service and delivering a safe and enjoyable guest experience. He quickly transitioned from restaurant management to his passion, by joining Avery Safety Consulting, Inc. in 1998, a company started by his father Bill.

Brian served the company as a safety and health consultant, where he performed amusement attraction and facility inspections, as well as, co-created and outlined safety guides and manuals for clients. Brian went on to work as a safety specialist for SeaWorld and Discovery Cove, where he developed and managed safety training programs for employees and conducted guest accident investigations and park-wide inspections of facilities and attractions.

After spending some time in the parks, Avery joined GES Exposition Services—a trade show installation company, where his safety management expertise was tested and essential in New Orleans post-Katrina tradeshow recovery efforts. Brian was tasked with the risk management and safety efforts of installing the American Library Association show, the first show post-Katrina in the Ernest N. Morial Convention Center, during rebuilding.

Brian has passionately dedicated his career to events, tourism, and attractions safety. He is a managing member in a company that provides events, tourism, and attractions safety consulting and expert witness services, consulting in the United States, United Kingdom, Dubai, Saudi Arabia, and the Caribbean.

In addition to Brian's many business activities, Brian has spent numerous years learning his trade... not only as a practitioner but as an academic. Brian holds a Bachelor of Science in Health, Leisure, and Exercise Science, a Post-Baccalaureate Graduate Certificate in Industrial Engineering with a concentration in Human Factors and Safety, a Master of Science in Hospitality and Tourism Management and has completed his coursework for a PhD in Hospitality Education, with an emphasis on events, tourism, and attractions safety and risk management.

Brian ardently developed talent within the events, tourism, and attractions industry, by instructing and mentoring students from the Rosen College of Hospitality Management at the University of Central Florida, where he was an instructor for nearly a decade. Brian has continued his academic efforts at the University of Florida as a lecturer in the College of Health and Human Performance, department of Tourism, Recreation and Sport Management. He is currently developing curriculum for a minor and stand-alone undergraduate degree in Live Entertainment Management within the department of Sport Management.

Brian provided internship opportunities to help facilitate the careers of future industry professionals and is proud of the progress many of his interns made. He also served for over 6-years as a faculty advisor at the University of Central Florida. Brian currently serves as a supervisor of event, tourism, hospitality and sport management internship/practicum student field experience at the University of Florida.

Brian had the privilege of creating a TED-Ed lesson on How Rollercoasters Affect your Body for educators and curiosity seekers throughout the world. Brian is also a published author, featured in four safety manuals for the events and attractions industries. His work was published in the Worldwide Hospitality and Tourism Themes Journal and he contributed a chapter to the textbook Strategic Management for Hospitality and Tourism. Brian was a contributing author on the 1st Edition guide published by MPI titled: The Essential Guide to Safety and Security, Best Practices for Meeting and Event Planning. Avery is currently working on a nonfiction book that will highlight the tragedies that have impacted the lives of those attending or experiencing events or attractions.

He has held or currently holds memberships within professional associations and societies, such as Meeting Professionals International-Risk Management Task Force, Florida Festival and Events Association, International Association of Venue Managers, ASTM International and American Society of Safety Engineers and American Society for Industrial Security.

Brian is passionate not only about events, tourism, and attractions safety, but believes in keeping culture and art alive in his community. He donated his time, resources and knowledge, serving as a Board member and Chair for the Orlando Repertory Theatre for 9 years.
